HUMAN SERVICES DEPARTMENT

Supporting through life's challenges

Our program is geared toward both students who wish to enter the field of human services, and those interested in professional development. We focus on teaching the essential skills needed to assist and support people facing problems including poverty, mental illness, abuse and life transitions.

Graduates will be prepared for entry-level paraprofessional and technical positions in the field.

Employment in this field spans a great number of settings and sectors. These can include assisted living, crisis intervention, chemical dependency, mental health, group homes, social advocacy, victim assistance, child welfare and more.

Job titles for our graduates may include case manager, child advocate, community outreach worker, behavior management specialist, life skills instructor, social work assistant and more.

Degree and certificate options are available. Our program is designed for both new students and those looking to retool or advance their careers. Our degree program is designed to provide a generalist approach focusing on learning and demonstrating the core body of professional knowledge, values, attitudes and skills appropriate for an entry-level position in a wide range of settings.

Our certificate options are available for those seeking to further their careers with professional development. Our certificates include focuses in case management, chemical dependency and a pre-social work bridge.

Credentials

Graduates will earn an Associate of Applied Science Degree in Human Services, while certificate-seekers can specialize in a variety of practices.
