

The Bowling Green State University (BGSU) Master of Education in Classroom Technology degree is designed for educators interested in engaging and empowering students through the integration of technology. Participants in the program leverage technology for facilitating personalized learning for students and modeling best practices through the integration of modern tools for access to digital strategies and resources. Candidates in this program transform the digital learning landscape of their classrooms. Graduates of this program are prepared to become local, regional and state leaders in the area of technology integration and coaching.

For Ohio licensed teachers, the core courses provide eligibility for the Computer Technology Endorsement through the Ohio department of education.
